A friend of Mr. Rhodes told me that, during the last provincial election campaign, he was asked a question about the B.C. fishing industry.

"I regret I can't answer that," he said. "I know so little about fishing. But, if you elect me to the legislature, I will promise to go out in a fishing boat for two weeks and learn all I can."

Mr. Rhodes was duly elected and he redeemed his promise. He spent two stormy weeks aboard a coastal vessel, without pay, and obtained all kinds of information vessel, without pay, and on the from weather-beaten shipmates.

In his maiden speech to the House Wednesday, young Mr. Rhodes spoke in a firm clear voice and assured members he was not nervous.

members he was not nervous.

"If you see signs of anxiety on my brow, it is because I have left my little farm at Cloverdale and my sheep are expecting lambs any day now."

Mr. Rhodes was manifestly proud to have been raised on a farm and he put in a boost for farmers everywhere.

"I have yet to meet a stupid farmer. If he is, he doesn't stay in the industry very long."

Another young man with an impressive bearing is Leslie Peterson who recently took over the duties of minister of education.

Mr. Peterson confessed that he spent some sleepless nights after Premier Bennett asked him to take on the extra portfolio, but promised to do his best.

extra portfolio, but promised to do his best.

He spoke of the "great contribution" made by former labor minister Lyle Wicks (defeated in the Sept. 12 election), and paid tribute to 87-year-old Tom Uphill who withdrew after 40 years in the House.

He believed that was a Commonwealth record.

Mr. Peterson said the legislature would be asked to approve a full MLA's pension for Mr. Uphill in view of his remarkable service to B.C. as the independent Labor member for Fernie.

Mr. Peterson also put in a word for jolly, rotund Afex Matthew, the Social Credit member who represents with him the constituency of Vancouver Centre.

As Deputy Speaker and committee chairman, Mr. Matthew has an advantage over the Speaker (Hugh Shantz)

"My bald head is just as formidable," joked Mr. Matthew.

The Conservatives are a dying force, provincially and federally, in the opinion of Tony Gargrave, the irrepressible CCF member for Mackenzie.

"Provincially they are already dead, with the Social Credit party as their ghostly re-incarnation," he said.

The CCF and Liberal opposition could have won a vote at 4 o'clock. Wednesday afternoon.

There were 18 members on the Opposition side of the House and only 16 in the government benches.

Somebody must have spotted the discrepancy, for several Social Crediters hurried back into the chamber around 4.10 p.m. and raised the government attendance to 21

Premier Bennett usually takes half an hour or so off from the afternoon sitting to meet visitors in the parliamentary restaurant upstairs. He had a long that over the coffee cups with Vice Admiral Herbert Rayner, back here from Ottawa to attend the launching of the destoyer escort Saskatchewan.

Stanley Carnell, the doughty member for South Peace River, let the House into a secret.

"No." answered Mr. Carnell. "You don't have to do that with our ministers. They are always approachable."

On the other hand, the Liberal party has declared a firm defence policy. Mr. Pearson would refuse to accept stomic weapons of any kind, would leave the creat deter-rent to the United States which alone is capable of managing it. Rejecting neutralism, he would use Canada's defence money where, he thinks, it would do the most good. The Canadian people may approve or reject Mr. Pearson's policy but The government, so far, has none.

In a matter so grave, touching the survival of the nation, no responsible politician will seek to play politics and none is doing so. The invention of the regular press ference was left to Woodrow Wilson. He got off to a promising start by calling in the press 11 days after his inauguration and suggesting "that you go into partnership with me." It was a flattering proposal, but in practice Wilson was first fascinated by the press and then bewildered by it.

In the end, he confessed, "the habits of these men are beyond me."

There would be a category to be known as "background," not be attributed to the White House but could otherwise be used "on your own responsibility." There would be news that could be attributed to "White House sources" but not to the Presi-dent himself. And finally there would be statements attributable to the President by permission in his own words.

These rules, which Mr. Truman racily continued, constituted a code of privilege with the reporters that pro-vided them with an incomparable pipe-line to the President's mind and hispolicies. The "background" talks in particular offered the most intimate and valuable guide to what was going on in the White House. They killed rumors, stiffed idle columns, and in general stopped the correspondents eking out sparse information with imaginative

Now, by calculation, President Kennedy is extending the Eisenhower system to tell all in sight and sound. He is said to have an urgent ambition to educate the people about the office and re-sponsibility of the Presidency. At the beginning, no doubt, he will achieve a dramatic television "rating." But the dreadful rewards of over-exposure may soon apply to other tele-vision performers than comedians. The American people are pitiless about shop worn novelties. The best hope of restor ing the value of Roosevelt's system lies in the statistical watch President Kennedy keeps on the public mood.

FLU BUG THREATENS LAST MATCH OF TOUR

LONDON (AP) — Influenza has hit the South African Rugby Union team and threatened to sabotage the last match of its British tour against Barbarians at Cardiff this Saturday.

Team manager Ferdie Bergh said it might not be possible to field a full side.

In that event, he offered to provide as many fit players as possible to take part in a scratch game with mixed teams.

Four of the team were receiving treatment for influenza at a Belfast hospital. Two others were confined to bed in Dublin. Five more men are injured and out of action.

ANOTHER SLANT

MIAMI (UPI)-Baseball fever is mounting in the Florida air today as the dugout denizens begin to gather for spring training and there is rather general agreement that the two men on the toughest spots are Ralph Houk and "Whistling Charley" Dressen. Houk has the distinctly unenviable job of living up to a legend as he succeeds Casey Stengel at the helm of the New York Yankees. Dressen claimed the pennant for Milwaukee last year, finished second and now must produce—or else.

The pitching they will be able to generate will tell their respective stories. Houk's job looks like the most complicated of the two. For he is in a position where he not only must be successful but he must manage his miracles with a certain unaccus-tomed dash. A mere winning manager will not suffice in the afterglow of the garrulous Stengel. Old Case, a surprise when he was chosen originally, went out in equally eye-popping fashion. Through a tenure of 12 years he won 10 nerican League pennants and seven world championships

Last season he came within two innings of an eighth world title—and then was fired. Stengel didn't go quietly. When last seen storming toward the west he still was handing out quotes. These weren't the double-talking Stengelese quips for which he was famous. His words, were harsh, bitter and to the point. But it is the Stengelese which will be remembered, and against which Houk must compete. Just about everything Casey said was quotable. It was designed that way.

Houk, the 41-year-old Kansan, will be quite a contrast—particularly if it is his misfortune to come up with a loser. He speaks crisply and to the point. There is no desire to be a humorous monologist. And, unless he comes up with some pitching, there may be days when he'll wish he had a bucketful of Casey's carefully rehearsed ad-libs on hand to cover up the embarrassment.

Dressen, on the other hand, is not bothered by a lack of ioquacity. If anything, Charley talks too much.

When he took over as manager of the Braves last season, Dressen was very outspoken about his belief that his predecessor had mismanaged the pitching staff. The two big men on the staff, Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette, had been overworked, he said. The younger pitchers should get more regular duties.

He would, he avowed in his brisk fashion, win the National League pennant.

He did prove one of his total points. Spahn and Burdette were better on a won-lost comparison with less work. Spahn was 21-10 compared with a 21-15 mark a year earlier. Burdette had a 19-13 mark, against a 21-15 record in 1959, but Lew's earned run average was appreciably lower.

Yet the younger pitchers, aside from Bob Buhl, didn't come through for him. Juan Pizzaro and Carl Willey were only 6-7; Joey Jay was a mere 9-8, and reliever Don McMahon fell to 3-6. With them went the pennant.

The late Connie Mack always claimed that pitching was 60 per cent of baseball. And any manager in the game would sooner come up with more pitching aid than inherit Mayo Smith, who labors in the Yankee farmyard, was moaning recently that the Yankees' number one spring project was to produce more and better pitching. They'd better get it, or Houk's freshman year as a pilot will be extremely uncomfortable.

He doesn't talk with enough Stengel vigor and confusion to camouflage a losing season. Dressen does, but in his case even that won't help unless he's explaining how he singlehandedly kept the club in first place.

LONDON (AP)—Capitalistic holders of sweepstakes tickets in the Grand National Steeplechase March 25 may get rich through the effort of three Communist-owned horses.

The trio, owned by the Soviet Union, were among the 56 entries announced Wednesday. Three previous winners of what is generally regarded as the world's toughest horse race also are on the list: Merryman II, last year's winzer; Oxo, the 1956 champ, and Mr. What, winner in 1958, are among the horses likely to match. their jumping skill against the Russians.

The Russian entries, Relief, Grifel and Epigraff II, have never raced before in Britain. Automatically, they'll carry top weight of 168 pounds in the four-mile, 856-yard chase over 30 obstacles and will also carry the get-rich-quick hopes of millions of people all over the world. Let's say, just for the sake of argument, that I find something to put in the sandwiches. The next problem is to find something to put the sandwiches in.

I know you can buy sandwich bags, but I never feel right about that when, after all, they give you all those nice little brown bags free with lettuce and bananas. But try and find a little brown bag at 1 o'clock in the morning.

Now there's the little item of milk money. In the school our children attend milk costs eight cents. Four children times four bottles of milk should give you a figure of 32 cents, or one, quarter, one nickel and two pennies. Break it down that way and one could just possibly locate 32 cents.

Danny Thomas and Daughter Marlo in 8.30 Western on 7

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

IN SPITE OF SOLEMNLY swearing in last week's column that I wasn't going to be on hand for Close . 5.00: Junior Reundup, 6, 2; Capt. Puget, 4; Stan Up's hour-long study of the need for atomic blast Boreson, 5; J. P. Patches, 7; Brakeman Bill, 11; Cloud shelters, Tuesday night, I was.

In some ways I suppose it was much like the murderer being drawn back irresistibly to the scene of his crime, or hitting your head with a hammer for no other reason than it feels so good when you stop.

No matter, there I was sitting stark and stiff in nfy own little corner like a kid alone in the house with a ghost story, too scared to go on reading but more scared to go to bed and shake in the darkness of his fusion exists.

Learn anything? I learned what a schoolmaster learns when he hands 20 identical sums to 20 students and is rewarded with 20 different answers that in spite of his good intentions a shocking state of confusion exists.

But, the good schoolmaster might puzzle, where does the fault lie? In himself or his pupils?

Before going further a tip of the hat to Close Up. The hour-long study into the need for fallout shelters under the heading "Three Feet of Earth," was of the quality that underscores the claims by many of us that the CBC show is without peer on the North American continent.

Apparently no effort or thought was spared in the program that featured some of the greatest brains and authorities on nuclear war who spoke about what might happen should the holocaust break out. There was Dr. Edward Teller of Oakland, Calif., "father of the H-Edward Teller of Oakland, Calif., "father of the H-Bomb"; Major General A. E. Wrinch, Canadian Army Headquarters, officer in charge of Survival, Ottawa; Dr. Linus Pauling of Pasadena, Calif., a Nobel Prize winning chemist; Dr. R. E. Lapp, Washington, D.C., nuclear physicist; Dr. Herman Kahn of Santa Monica, Calif., author of the recently published book, "On Thermonuclear War," and several other experts from both sides of the border. and can be counted on for land and can be counted on for land and worthy service where conditions favoring cover land footstool, good cover both sides of the border.

> BUT FOR THE viewing public surely the hour must have caused much uncertainty for—like the schoolboys with their sums—not one of these learned gentlemen seemed to agree with his fellow colleagues. For all the questions there appeared to be different

Some thought if the bombs fell far enough away the $500 home-shelters would save lives. Another the $500 home-shelters would save lives. Another thought that if an enemy wanted to kill you badly enough a shelter half-a-mile under ground would merely melt away and bury you alive. Others thought and I with them—that the very presence of whole-sale shelters might be enough to tip Mars' hand and bring down the conflagration upon our souls. Still others, along this same line, asserted that the only and a reading from the works of Canadian, English and American writers. way for humanity to survive was through the UN and a reading from the works of Canadian, English way for humanity to survive was through the UN and a merican writers.

Channels 7, 11, 12: CBS Reports on "The Business might be expounded the laws of common sense and thorough understanding of the enormity of the hour. situation.

The people—what did they think about shelters and their chances of survival? Not much, if the sidewalk interviews among Canadians by the CBC were any indication. Young and old alike seemed to be its favor as siding, and of particular importance when used as roof decking.

'Poor Swede Investors Defended by Peterson

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson Wednesday defended "the poor Swedes" who want to invest money in B.C.

Amid cries of derision from the opposition, he upfield the B.C. government's attempts to attract outside capital investment.

Although he mentioned no names, the "poor Swedes" weer taken to be Swedish financier Axel Wenner Gren and his associates who plan to build the $630,000,000 Peace River power project and the Back the CCF members.

Solution to unemployment in to unemployment problems also must involve entirely done, "called back the CCF members.

Mr. Peterson said the government's attack on unemployment investment; creation of public works; raising educational investment; creation of public works; raising educational standards and providing technical training.

He said unemployment is associates who plan to build the $630,000,000 Peace River power project and the Back the CCF members.

Mr. Peterson said the government's attack on unemployment investment; creation of public works; raising educational standards and providing technical training.

"First and most important," he said, "Foundards and providing technical training.

"First and most important," he said, "First and most important," he said, "is to create the right impact for industry to prospect in the problems is to ensure B.C. The poolems is to ensure B.C.

HITS SOCIALIZATION

"The threat of socialization of industry does nothing to encourage more industry, more capital into B.C.," he said. "The verbal attacks in this legislature against private firms and individuals who are prepared to invest their money and develop this province does growth.

"The threat or promise of spending millions of dollars to take over an existing indus-try which would not create a single new job does nothing to encourage future capital investment.'

"Yes," shouted back Mr. Peterson. "They object to American capital coming in here

Labor Paper Again Scored By Minister

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson Wednesday joined the government attack on statements aed by the B.C. Federation of Labor as being fraudulent

He hit the national re-sources committee of the fed eration for the annual report made to a convention last fall.

The report attacked indus-trialists in strong language: it referred to a "wolverine" it referred to a "wolverine" and "skunk" in the forest in-dustry, and a "jackal" in the oil and gas industry. "They should stand up and repudiate this sort of stuff,"

'We didn't write it," called back Opposition Leader Rob ert Strachan.

Mr. Peterson backed up Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan's attack Tuesday on elec-tion-time pamphlets issued by the labor group.

He challenged the CCF to deny they were fraudulent as Mr. Kiernan charged.

By MONTE ROBERTS

How long can two minutes be? For Harold Husband and Heribert Hammill and Tom Motfit, and for Mrs. H. S. Rayner, and for 300 almost-as-interested spectators, the 120 seconds between 1.30 and 1.52 p.m. Wednesday stretched out for a long, long, very Because this was the time it took destroyer escort 262, which will one day join the Royal Canadian Navy as a commissioned ship, to overcome her reluctance to slide down the ways at Victoria Machinery Depot.

DDE 262 was to have been launched at 1.20 p.m. Tues-day, but gale-force winds compelled postponement.

The hull sat overnight on the ways, compressing the grease hard against the launching ramp.

Anxious VMD officials spent a "sitting up with a sick friend" night, as 262 worked a little, and slid a little, against the restraining force of the chocks which had not

Then, at 1.50 p.m. Wednesday, following the traditional ceremony, Mrs. Rayner-wife of the chief of naval staff—pulled the trigger which smashed the champagne bottle, against 262's hull, and proclaimed the name "Saskatchewan."

Correct name for the fish is Jacks Foiled and Everyone Sighed

DDE 262 moved not an inch.

Had the grease on the ways hardened too much? Had DDE 262 decided to stay ashore?

Those were the thoughts in the minds of Mrs. Rayner, and of Mr. Husband, VMD's president; Mr. Hammill, general manager, and Mr. Moffit, works manager.

Then workmen below the shore-bound stem of the hull put hydraulic jacks to work, exerted a little pressure, and with this coaxing, DDE 262—with an audible sigh from beneath her keel—ended her reluctance and backed toward her chosen element.

Exactly one minute later, 262 floated in the salt-chuck, and docilely accepted the escort of four tugs.

She was now no longer a hull and a number, she was a lady of the sea and her name was Saskatchewan.

Duncan Fears More Flooding

Koksilah River, in flood for a second time this winter because of heavy rains, burst over its banks at five spots along Cowichan Bay Road today.

The flooding, and rising waters in Cowichan River and Somenos Creek, had residents in lowlying portions of Duncan and North Cowichanfearful of a repetition of the mid-January floods which caused thousands of dollars damage.

Koksilah River was four feet higher than normal. Slower rising Cowichan River and Somenos Creek are still within their banks, and a close watch is being kept on their levels.

Save Trees Plea From Architects

Architects today made an urgent appeal to save shade trees on the Douglas-Hum-boldt corner of the Empress Hotel property.

Letters warning against the "folly" were sent by Vancou-ver Island chapter of the Architectural Institute of B.C. to the hotel manager, gen-eral manager of the Canadian Pacific Hotels chain and City Hall.

The hotel is said to be con sidering cutting down the trees in order to extend its parking lot to accommodate a new bus terminal.
